A Popular Citizen Leaves Redcliff

E. G. Waller, who has been manager of the Motor Truck factory here ever since it started business, has been transferred to the transfer of this plant to the firm which is already interested in the rolling mills here. The arbitration board of which Mr. Waller was a member, have completed their work and the key of the plant have been handed over to the new company.

Mr. Waller left on Wednesday morning's train for his old home in Minneapolis, and from there he will go to Tampa, Florida, where he with his family will reside in future.

Since coming to Redcliff Mr. Waller has made many friends who will be sorry to learn of his removal from our town. In starting the motor truck factory he was uniting in his efforts to make it a success. His plant turned out one of the very best articles in this line on the market, and for a time the prospects for a thriving industry was more promising. His goods were coming in from all parts of the west but just about the time prospects were most encouraging the war broke out and several orders previously placed were cancelled. This left the plant with a number of trucks either completed or in the making, on his hands, and he was successful in disposing of a number of them to the Dominion government for training camps.

Mr. Waller was one of our most popular citizens during his sojourn here, and we miss him every evening in his new home.

Information for Potato Shippers

There has been considerable activity in the shipping of western potatoes, this season, owing to the failure of the crop in Ontario and certain parts of the States, and to the production of a surplus in the western provinces of Canada. While the eastern demand is sufficiently strong to ensure profitable prices to western producers, higher prices are being paid by dealers who are supplying the United States markets.

Under the regulations of the United States Department of Agriculture the importation of potatoes is prohibited from certain countries on account of the presence in these countries of the disease known as potato wart or black scab. The Canadian product is not under an embargo on this account but is subject to inspection at the boundary. Already there has been a considerable movement of potatoes to United States markets from British Columbia, Manitoba and Saskatchewan. Nine cars, however, have been rejected at the boundary. Several cars have already been shipped from Alberta and to date all have passed inspection. The possibility of a profitable business depends upon the condition in which potatoes go forward on the United States border.

While the dealer is the one who is directly affected by the rejection of the potatoes, the producer must ultimately suffer the result if the United States markets should be closed against the shipment of the potatoes.

The Provincial Department of Agriculture has been in communication with the United States Federal Department with a view to having provincial inspection at shipping point accepted in place of federal inspection at the boundary. It is evident that there is a risk of rejection at the port of entry with the consequent loss to the shipper and the danger of permanent injury to the market. After some correspondence the department has been advised that the United States officials must be made at the boundary regardless of any previous inspection.

The regulations state that cars will not be condemned by reason of the infection of a small percentage of tubers on such common diseases as scab, black leg, fusarium wilt, and dry rot, but a general condition of disease from these troubles is sufficient to cause the rejection of the shipment. It should be the aim of producers and dealers to keep all potatoes so affected out of their shipments.

Red Cross To Hold Dance on Nov. 23rd

At the regular meeting of the Red Cross executive held last Tuesday it was decided to hold a dance in Reid's hall on Thursday evening, Nov. 23rd.

The committee appointed to make the necessary arrangements has already met and decided that the dance will be held in Reid's hall. O'Fallon's orchestra has also been engaged for the occasion and there is no doubt that this will be one of the events of the season.

As the object of this dance is to make money for the society it is the intention of the committee to run it as economically as possible. With this object in view they are asking the ladies of the town to provide the refreshments. It will be impossible for the committee to call on all the ladies for donations in this line, consequently they are asked to take this as an intimation of the kind of refreshments with them to the dance.

Remember the date, Thursday, Nov. 23rd.

A POOR EXCUSE.

We are informed by some of the Red Cross collectors that an excuse given by some of those town who do not contribute to this fund is that they do not believe in war.

It seems to the Review this is a very lame excuse. Few, if any of us, believe in war. Nevertheless one of the greatest wars in the history of the world is now at its height. Because of it hundreds of our own Canadian boys are suffering the tortures of hell itself on the blood sprinkled battlefields of Flanders.

The Red Cross Society is an international organization which has for its object, work that will tend toward alleviating the sufferings of unfortunate soldiers and provide them with comforts they could not otherwise get.

As a people we do not believe in street fights or riots, but who amongst us would refuse to bind up the wounds or try to make comfortable a bleeding human being fresh from one of these riots, simply because we didn't believe in them. Why, we'd even try to relieve a dog from suffering so matter how the suffering was caused.

What a stretch of the imagination, therefore, it must be for those who asked to be excused of helping in Red Cross work because they do not believe in war. Better by far to be honest and give the real reason than to try to dodge responsibility in this way.

THE FARM HOME.

At the present time when we hear so much back-to-the-land talk, and when the abundant crops of the last two years are turning the attention of town and city folk forward, the question of "keeping" the young folks on the farm is also occupying the attention of our present farmers. As a solution of the latter problem, an American farm journal has the following to say:

"A time will come, when enlightened farmers will realize that the farm household is the source of all energy, enterprise and intelligence that makes farming a success and life on the farm possible. It is the indefatigable farmer's wife that makes the farm home altogether too often she makes it a real home in spite of her husband rather than as a result of his co-operation with her. He, to his shame be it said, too often has by far a greater appreciation for hogs, cattle, grain and hay and their proper handling and care than the equipment and environments that make practicable the proper rearing of his own children. Yet he will complain that the young people will not stay on the farm."

Only a few short months ago the name "Hughes" was a household word in many countries and it looked as though 1916 was to have been "Hughes" year. Now, however, the tide has turned and the one time prominent Hughes are apparently down and out. The first was the premier of Australia who lost his popularity over conscription. Next was the U. S. Hughes who made a bid for the presidency and was turned down: then came our own Sir Sam Hughes.

SIR SAM'S RETIREMENT.

The retirement of Sir Sam Hughes as a member of the Dominion cabinet, coming as it does at a time when the result of his energy and organizing ability of the past two years is just being realized, makes one feel like saying: "Well, it's too bad." We feel that there was something more of a crowning tribute to his usefulness coming to him, but alas, such is fate. Sir Sam was his own worst enemy and he has nobody to blame but himself for his present predicament. He was a clean man morally and politically and had the courage of his convictions. Qualities which one might think were all that is necessary to make a man a successful politician. But it is not so. Sir Sam had his faults. The activities in the department over which he had control unfortunately furnished the opportunity for him to put those faults to the test, and, more unfortunately his faults outweighed his ability. His most noticeable faults lately were his egotism, his temper and dictatorial manner in conducting the affairs of his department; faults which in many cases prompted him to do and act contrary to the wishes of the prime minister and other members of the cabinet. This in a country of responsible government could not long be tolerated.

That Sir Robert Borden and the cabinet went the limit with the ex-minister in this regard there is ample proof, and when things kept going from bad to worse the prime minister had no alternative than to let him die. The affair reminds one of the words Shakespeare put into the mouth of Brutus:

"There is a tide in the affairs of men, Which, if taken at the flood, leads on to fortune; Omitted, all the voyage of their life is bound in shallows and miseries."

"On such a full sea" was Sir Sam Hughes afloat but it is very unfortunate that he omitted to trim his sails to the breeze.

PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION.

The election of Woodrow Wilson to a second term as president of the United States was the cause for great rejoicing not only among the one-time American citizens of this district but by the Canadians as well.

The result of this election has created many new records. It has shown that a president can be elected without securing control of the New York vote. It has shown that the Democrats have become an alternative national party, able to contest the field with Republicans, not only on terms of equality but against great odds.

The election just closed was one in which many questions pertaining to a presidential campaign, were introduced, and that President Wilson came through it with flying colors may be taken not so much as a victory for the Democratic party but as a recognition of the strong personality of Woodrow Wilson himself.

In the case of King vs. Thomas Kelly, of Winnipeg, one of the prominent figures in the Manitoba government scandals, Kelly was convicted in the trial court. His appeal for a new trial was rejected first by court of appeals for Manitoba, and then by the supreme court of Canada. Kelly's counsel is now appealing to the Minister of Justice for Canada, asking him to throw aside the finding of the two courts and grant a new trial. The Minister may have the power to grant this request but if he should do so it would simply be making a farce of our court proceedings and would be working politics to the ridiculous point.

It can hardly be imagined that the Minister of Justice taking such an absurd step.

A WISE MOVE.

After nearly 27 months of war a serious effort is at last being undertaken by the British government and by British trading interests to wipe out the large German influence in British trade and finance. Why it has been allowed to continue so long is one of the mysteries of the war. It has been charged on all sides that some mysterious influence has been at work to protect the enemy traders, but there is no evidence that this is so. It is much more likely that like tenderness to those enemy traders is due to the incurable British spirit of good-natured sportsmanship which refuses to recognize in the industrial German who may be a good enough sort of fellow, an enemy who is dangerous and whose power for offence must be crushed.

It is only now that the old country people are beginning to realize the position they are in. With a large percentage of their own merchants, mechanics and tradesmen either in the trenches or in training, the business field of all the large centers is left almost entirely in the hands of Germans who were established in business before the war broke out. It is said that if the war were to end tomorrow these Germans would find themselves in a better position than many of their British competitors.

This state of affairs has at last aroused the British business community and two important movements to compel a sterner method of dealing with enemy traders have been started, one in parliament and the other the city of London, the center of British trade and finance.

As a result of this all German business will be controlled by government officials and all German banks closed.

FIRE PAIL PROTECTION

Useful articles to have on the farm are buckets of water properly distributed around the barn. Fire buckets, with rounded bottoms, which, on account of their shape are inconvenient for general use, can be placed in a round hole cut in a shelf or bench; they should be covered and inspected regularly to assure their being kept full. To prevent freezing two pounds of fused calcium chloride per pail may be used. The buckets should be painted red so that they will be more conspicuous, a constant reminder of the danger of fire.

The time is now drawing near for our annual municipal elections. This year the retiring officials will be Messrs. McLean, Oates and Grove on the council and Messrs. Bryant and Riddell on the school board. We have not heard whether or not it is the intention of these retiring officials to stand again but think it would be a good idea for the ratepayers to wait upon them and find out. If not, an effort should be made to get good men to fill their places. The time is now getting short.

Farm implements should be placed under cover before the snow covers them. They are then ready to be overhauled and prepared for spring work during the winter months, when work on the farm is not pressing.

WILSON WILL WRITE

NO MORE NOTES.

From a high authority it is learned, says the New York Herald, that President Wilson has made up his mind not to send any more notes to Germany on the submarine issue, and that if it should develop that recent cases, such as the torpedoing of the Arabia without warning, are in violation of the laws of cruiser warfare and of the Prussian promise to this country, the next step will be the dismissal from Washington of Count Bernstorff and the recall formally of Mr. Gerard, United States ambassador to Berlin.

French Still Busy

On Somme Front

An official report from the French war office says: "North of the Somme we completed the conquest of Ballist and carried with grenades some groups of houses in the eastern part of the village, where parties of Germans were still holding out. The whole village, where parties of Germans were still holding out, was now in our possession. The losses the Germans sustained in this fighting are indicated by the number of bodies which cover the captured ground. We captured seven officers and 220 unwounded prisoners together with eight machine guns.

"On the rest of the front, there is only artillery action.

"Adjutant Bonney brought down on November 4th his fifth German aeroplane."

Dispatches from Rome say that the Pope is about to send a note to Germany protesting strongly against the reports of wholesale deportation of Belgians. The dispatches say that this decision of the Pontiff has been known semi-officially in various circles.

It is authoritatively stated in London that the Pope, Spain and the United States are preparing to make the urgent joint action to stop the German deportation of Belgian laborers.

It is a cake with a history. When Mr. White's father was leaving home for the first time his mother made him up a package of oats of her own make and in it were some oatmeal cakes. They were all eaten but one and this one lost itself in the corner of the boy's trunk where it was not discovered for some time. It was carefully packed and replaced in the trunk where it remained for 32 years. At that time the original owner died and the coveted cake was passed on to his son, the Rev. F. T. Think Hun Subs Endanger Americans

A complete summary of the situation growing out of recent activities of German submarines is being prepared at the state department at Washington for submission to President Wilson on his return to Washington. While officials are not inclined to discuss the subject in its present stage, they admit informally that the outlook is more disturbing than it has been at any time since the sinking of the chained steamer Sussex.

Official information is still incomplete in all the cases being investigated by the department, including those of the British passenger liner Arctica and the British freighter Marina, on which six Americans lost their lives.

Aside from the specific cases about which inquiry is being made, disquiet has been caused by the general over submarine warfare has taken recently. Officials fear that the submarines are operating on such a scale and under such conditions that it may be impossible for them to avoid endangering Americans illegally.

The Duke and Duchess of Devonshire arrived in Ottawa last Monday. The duke is Canada's new governor-general.
